Thank you for downloading Bookworm Homeschool's Fast Five Fact Book. I hope you enjoy making this book with your students. The photo on the cover is of Helen Keller by Charles Milton Bell c1892.

We started by learning about our subject through books and videos. I asked my student to select five facts they learned about their subject and write about each one on the provided pages. There is room to draw a small illustration related to the facts on each page. I have included additional lined pages for students who need more space to write, as well as additional blank pages for miscellaneous content. For example, my student chose to make a timeline to show the order in which the facts or events occurred. Once the book is complete, we simply staple it and add it to our book box or notebook. If you like this product and wish to share it, please share the link!

Thank you!

Helen Keller learned to communicate with finger spelling, using her hands to read the symbols and letters that others make with their fingers. Have you tried to learn or read another language?

---

---

What do you think it would be like to learn a language without seeing the letters or hearing the words?
